tells us that he was cured by the use of St. Jacob's Oil of a complicated case of rheumatism of ten years standing. Another factory is to be started at Hagerstown. Mr. Ringrose, of Mechanicaburg, Pa., manufacturer of leather fly nets, will remove his manufactory to Hagerstown, and twenty hands will be employed in making fly nets for horses. The Treasury Department has prepared a voluminous report on the diseases of swine, which contains over 500 pages and proves conclusively that these diseases originated in England, Germany and other European countries, and have always existed in those countries as far back as the record goes. The estate in Rockbridge county, Va., embracing the celebrated natural bridge, has been purchased by H. O. Parsons, vice president of the Richmond and Alleghany railroad. The property contains 700 acres, and s within one and a half miles of the Alleghany road. It is proposed to lay the grounds out as a park. The Luray (Vs.) Courier is responsible for the fellowing: Two young Baltimoreans, sons of gentlemen worth $1,000,000 each, have engaged to work at the De Ford tannery; and will take a thorough course of the trade. They will be here, so we are informed, as soon as the work opens at the yard. They will begin at the bottom round of the ladder, and stick until they are mas-

They are armed with a light rifle, manufactured expressly for them, with sword and bayonet, and are uniformed with trousers, blouse and Scotch bonnett. They are drilled once a week, and execute various artillery maneuvers once a month. There are now 23,000 young soldiers engaged, from eleven to thirteen years of age. POETICAL. THE SEXTON.

Nigh to a grave that was newly made, Leaned a sexton old, on his earth-worn spade His work was done, and he paused to wait The funeral train through the open gate; A relic of by-gone days was he. And his looks were as white as the feamy sea And these words came from his lips so thin, "I gather them in ! I gather them in !"

"I gather them in ! fer man and boy, Year after year of grief and jey, I've builded the houses that lie around In every neek of this burial ground. Mother and daughter, father and sen, Come to my solitude, one by one-But come they strangers, or come they kin, I gather them in! I gather them in

"Many are with me, but still I'm alone! I'm king of the dead and I make my throne On a monument slab of marble cold. And my sceptre of rule is the spade I hold. Come they from cottage,or come they from hall, Mankind are my subjects-all, all, all! Let them leiter in pleasure, or toilfully spin, I gather them in! I gather them in!

'I gather them in, and their final rest Is here, down here, in the Earth's dark breast; And the sexter ceased—for the funeral train Wound mutely over that solemn plain; And I said to my heart-when time is told, A mightier voice than the sexton's old Will sound o'er the last trump's dreadful din-I gather them in ! I gather them in."

MISCELLANEOUS.

PROFITABLE POLITENESS.

HE Boston Traveler, in commenting on the prevalence of rudeness, tells the following incident that happened some years ago: There was a plainly dressed, elderly lady who was a frequent customer at the then leading dry goods store in Boston. No one in the store knew her even by name. All the clerks but one avoided her, and gave their attention to those who were better dressed and more pretentious. The exception was a young man who had conscientious regard for duty and system. He never left another customer to wait on a lady, but when at liberty he waited on her with as much attention as if she had been a princess.

This continued a year or two, till the young man became of age. One morning the lady approached the young man, when the following conversation took place: Lady—"Young man, do you wish to go into business for yourself?"
"Yes, ma'am," he replied, "but I have neither money, credit nor friends, nor will any one trust me." "Well," continued the lady, "you go and select a good situation. ask what the rent is, and report to me." handing the young man her address. The young man went, found a capital location, and a good store, but the landlord required security, which he could not give. Mindful of the lady's request, he forthwith went to her and reported, "Well," she replied, "you go and tell Mr. — that I will be responsible." He went and the landlord or agent was surprised, but the bargain was closed. her, but added: "What am I to do for goods? No one will trust me." "You may go and see Mr. —, and Mr. —, and Mr. —, and tell them to call on me." He did, and his store was soon stocked with the best goods in the market. There are many in this city who remember the circumstance and the man. He died many years ago, and left a fortune of $300,000. Se much for politeness, so much for treating one's elders with the deference due to age, in whatever garb they are clothed. THE LORD'S PRAYER REVISED -The Philadelphia Times, in noticing the changes made in the revised version of the New Testament, in the text of the Lord's Prayer, thinks the fellowing comparison will be of interest: REVISED VERSION. COMMON VERSION. MATTHEW 6: 9-13.—

Our Father which art in Heaven. Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, see on earth. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us bread. And forgive us our debts, as we forhave forgiven served to temptation, tation, but deliver us but deliver us from cvil.

In New Milford, Conn., some sixteen years ago, a man named Allen, in a fit of drunken passion, killed his brother. He was tried, found guilty, and sentenced to impris-onment for life. Since that time he has been in the State Prison at Wethersfield, where he has conducted himself properly, and made himself a favorite with the officials. A strong effort for his release was successful; he was pardoned the other day by act of the Legislature. Then he was presented with a watch and over $200 in money, and upon visiting the State Capitol when the Legislature was given a reception in the Governor's room, where he was introduced to the State officers and members of the Legislature. We do not quite make out whether this demonstration was on account of his having survived sixteen years' imprisonment, or his proper behavior during the time, or his killing his brother in the first instance. It is pretty certain, however, that he would never have been made a hero of if he had not committed the murder. How much happier his lot than that of the poor fellow who had so much trouble settling his brother's estate that he felt some times "almost sorry that his brother died." Mr. Allen has no occasion for any such regret. He killed his brother, was in prison sixteen years and came out a hero. the Legislature and State officials say to the youth of Connecticut, "Go thou and do likewise."-New York Tribune.

[Attleboro Chroniele.] CARRY THE NEWS .- Mr. John Etgensperger, manufacturing Jeweler, of North Attleboro, Mass., lately communicated to us the following: I suffered so much with pains in my arm, that at times I was completely helpless. An Eloquent Appeal in Behalf of a Branch

By some over-sight of the public printer, the following speech, made at the last see sion, by a Territorial delegate, was omitted

from the Record:

"Mr. Speaker : It will not astonish me to see the gentlemen on the other side attempt to filibuster on this question, but let me tell them, sir, that the people who sleep in the glowing gush of the setting sun are gazing with glistening orbs on the fate of this meaeure. The people of the East may look dis-dainfully from beneath the rims of their zouith searing plug-hats upon the demands of the West, but the day has come, sir, when the proud denizens of the mountain passes that give birth to the swelling waters of our rushing rivers, have come to know their rights, and they, sir, have sent me here to maintain them. The brave pioneer, who, taking his life in one hand and American civilization in the other, stepped forth upon the peraries to plant them both, rests his arms upon his gan and looks to you for action. The lonely Indian stands by his wig-wam and defies, with threatening glances, the gentlemen on the other side. The voice of maidens comes over plains, mingling with the grass that inhales the fragrance of their breath, and the prattle of children is caught up by the blizzard and wafted toward you, all joining in the cry of rage and indignation which the opponents of this bill have aroused. Would you divide this Nation? Would you have the swift Missouri a Satine, or would you make it a Dasube? Would you have it a Thames, or would you make it a Rhine? Taking its rise in the thunder-nursing peaks of the glistening Rockies, it peurs its floods through the fertile peraries and plantation alike, cementing the grandest quarter spheres that ever conspired to constitute a hemisphere. Would you change its destiny?-Then tell the people of the West that you hoot their pleas for justice to scorn, and the broad bosom of that stream will become the dividing line between your nation and mine, and States will crumble before the march of civilization, instigated by the life giving, freedom breathing Territories whom you are scoking to crush. Already the East has decided that the edge passes without the deal. Already the East has proclaimed that straights do not count, and fixed three of a kind as the next above two pair. But beware! Alexander of Macedonia followed victory too far, and his defeat at Parthenia gave Troy to the world and paved the way for English jurisprudence. Beware! The bordes of the Northwest are settling to the collar, and the glint of their rifles is schood back from the rock-bound hills that bore them .-Refuse this measure, and you inject ruin where all is new peace. You blast the perairie flowers with hissing breath and build a menument of benes to the short-sighted policy that denies the Ged-fearing frontiersman the rights which the elementary principles of constitutional government guaranteed him in his birth. We do not sek much, sir. Our demands are small, but, in the language of our common Scripture, sir, I tell the gentiemen on the other side, that until beaven The next day the lady again called to as-certain the result. The young man told tittle of the American eagle shall pass away until you have adopted some measure establishing a branch wood-yard at the mouth of BALTIMORE AND OHIO THROUGH TRAINS FROM NEW YORK - Yesterday the Baltimere and Ohio Railroad Company withdraw its traffic from the Bound Brook route, and hereafter all the business of the road between New York and Philadelphia will be done over the Pennsylvania Raisroad. Baltimore and Ohio trains will be run solid from New York through to Chicago, St. Louis, Cincirnati, Louisville, &c., without changes .-The centrect with the Pennsylvania Reilroad," says the New York Evening Post, "is such that all the privileges of the united railroads of New Jersey now possessed by that road will be enjoyed by the Baltimore and Ohio. The contract is to last until the new line of the Baltimore and Ohio road between Baltimore and Philadelphia is cempleted, which is expected to be in about nine nonths from date." . This transfer of traffic has made necessary a slight change of time in the departure and arrival of trains of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which went into effect yesterday. The revised schedule is published elsewhere. - Balt. Sun, Arpil 4. IMPORTANT POSTAL REGULATIONS.—

The Postmaster General has revoked the regulations regarding third-class matter, recently in operation. In future everything wholly or partly in writing must be remitted at first-class rates. - The importance of this ruling will be understood when it is known that all bills, bills of lading and other forms of merely business statements, which have hitherto passed through the mails as thirdclass matter, requiring only one cent postage, will in the future be treated as first-class. and need to be accompanied with a three cent stamp to secure their transmission. The following are some of the changes made in the law governing County Courte: "Two commissioners constitute a quorum;

pensity of commissioner for failing to attend, five to twenty dollars; compensation of commissioner, two dollars per day for each day be attends a session of the court; four regular sessions yearly, and the president and one commissioner may call special meetings; their jurisdiction is substantially the fiscal jurisdiction of the old county court; they have power to preserve the public bealth; the fiscal year begins on the 1st of June, and the county lavy is to be laid at a meeting held in the month of July; a full statement of the county finances is to be published each year; claims against the county shall be filed with the clerk of the county court, who presents them to the court at its next session thereafter, when they shall be son-sidered - claims, therefore, can be allowed at any meeting; appeals are allowed from county courts in dertain cases, --
